LATEST NEWS...

A Covid-19 vaccine has been approved. It's been made available first to those who need it the most (like healthcare workers and nursing home residents). But don't worry, a general rollout will quickly follow. The vaccine went through rigorous testing and as a result, the FDA has provided its emergency use authorization. While all this is highly exciting, it's important to continue following normal safety guidelines (social distancing, face masks, and hand washing).
